DRUNKEN MAN TOYED WITH A GUN

To have the muzzle of a large revolver placed in the pit of his stomach with the finger of a drunken man on the trigger, was the experience of Andrew Baer, a waiter in a Twenty-fifth street restaurant, two nights ago. After he had related the details of his experience in police court this morning, F. Messerly, charged with carrying concealed weapons, was sentenced to serve 75 days in the city jail or pay a fine of $75.

Baer stated that Messerly had come into the restaurant Thursday evening intoxicated, and had begun to quarrel with an old man seated next to him. Baer said he asked Messerly to desist and the fellow was quiet for a time. A few minutes later, he sat next to Messerly to read a paper and was annoyed by being poked in the stomach. When he turned to see what the fellow was doing, he saw that Messerly had a gun.

Baer said he got the fellow to remove the gun by humoring him, telling him he was a good fellow. The gun was pocketed but again, in a few moments, Messerly again drew the revolver and pointed it at the waiter. Baer said that he caught the fellow unawares and removed the revolver from his grasp.

Messerly pleaded drunkenness as an excuse. He said he does not remember what he did. When arrested, he declared, he bought the gun to protect himself from highwaymen. Today he stated he bought the gun to use on a fishing trip.

AMATEUR TEAMS PLAY BASEBALL

The Dinwiddie Construction team defeated the Depot bunch in a ball game at Twenty-seventh street and Grant avenue yesterday afternoon. The score was 12 to 2 and because of the difference in the number of runs the game was declared uninteresting.

Neither team has been defeated this season and an excellent game is predicted. The winner will probably challenge the Ogden league team to a game at the close of the season.

By the score of 11 to 5, the Becker Brewery team defeated the Oregon Short Line clerks. The line-up: Becker-Davis, ss.; Wright, 2b.; Owen, lf.; Ranson, 1b.; Torgensen, 2b.; Wilkensen, c.; Larsen, cf.; Young, p.; Johnson, rf. WATER SUPPLY IS FROM THE RIVER

As a result of a trip of investigation paid to the sources of Ogden City's water supply, City Sanitary Inspector George Shorten will present a report to the city commission Monday in which he will recommend that certain conditions be changed.

Practically all yesterday was spent by C. F. Emery, state sanitary inspector, and the city inspector, in Ogden canyon, Wheeler canyon and at the city reservoirs.

Emery stated that the water supply of Ogden was found to be in better condition than that of other cities he had investigated recently, but he had suggestions to make.

It was found that much of the water used in the city is drawn direct from Ogden river. Consequently, steps will be taken to see that sanitary conditions exist along the stream to Huntsville. The inspectors found corals in Wheeler canyon that were within 50 feet of the stream. These were ordered moved to points that will comply with the statutes.

Samples were taken of Ogden river water at the intake to the pipe and also of Wheeler creek water and Cold Water canyon water. Emery took the samples to Salt Lake with him last night and the report of State Chemist Herman Harms will be presented to the commissioners.

A report came to the inspectors that there were cattle roaming about at the head of Wheeler creek in the basin, but the sanitary inspectors did not have time to investigate.

Returning to the city, the two went to the two city reservoirs and found that the water was quite low.

"The conditions surrounding Ogden's water supply are good," declared the sanitary inspector today in speaking of the trip. "Mr. Emery also agreed that Ogden is fortunate compared with other cities that have been visited. Still there are a few things to be corrected and when those conditions are remedied, the city will have the best water supply in the state."

HEAVY CROP OF BEETS NEAR OGDEN

Field Superintendent Job Pingree of the Amalgamated Sugar company, states that instead of there being only 5000 acres of beets growing in the Ogden factory district, there are over 6000 acres. Though many who contracted to plant beets failed to do so and quite a large acreage that was planted did not grow beets, the acreage is greater this year than in previous years, which will likely necessitate the opening of the factory at an earlier time than in past years.

Regarding the beet situation, Mr. Pingree has the following to say:

"A few days ago I saw a statement in the papers reporting that I had said there were 7000 acres of sugar beets contracted for the Ogden sugar factory, but that only 5000 acres were growing. This 5000-acre statement is a mistake. The facts are that we have growing in this territory about 6500 acres. This is the largest acreage we have ever had for this factory. The time to commence working these beets up is drawing near. In years past we have commenced operating the factory somewhere between the 10th and 20th of September of each year, but, because of such an unusually large acreage this season, it will be necessary to start as soon as the beets are ready.

"Farmers will do well to arrange their work so they can dig when they get notice to do so. Some farmers in the past have contended they lost money by digging early, while others would rather dig early than late. One advantage of digging early is that the beets are usually clean, and farmers don't have much dirt to haul, while a great deal of the season, when the dug late in the season, when the ground is exceptionally wet, and it is not infrequent that farmers have to haul from six to thirty per cent trash to say nothing about having to work in frost and snow to harvest their crops. The ripe beets are always called first, and as ripe beets are not growing like green ones, the farmer having the ripe beets does not lose as much as some may think. Harvesting early also gives him a chance to prepare his land for next year's crop by the time each one notified early to dig has got up about one acre, there are many eager to do likewise, but it would not be fair to stop those who started early for the benefit of others. Each farmer who has early beets will do well to cut his hay early and be ready to harvest his beets when notified. Farmers who are raising grain and intend to plant beets or other crops on their land next year, will do well to plow the land at once, turning it up to the sun, killing the weeds, and turning all green stuff under to rot and fertilize the land. I have found that where I have plowed land as soon as the grain was taken off, it was much better for crops the next season.

A few more words about the digging of beets. When the first of October comes, those who have a good sized patch of beets, and also some with small patches, all are anxious to dig and deliver their crops, but up to about the 15th of October the Sugar company can only take beets about as fast as they can be worked up. Beets cannot be stored until the weather is cool enough so they will not heat and go bad in piles, but as soon as the weather is cool enough, notice will be given to all, as we desire to get the beets piled before too much frost comes, because frozen beets, when out in piles, spoil when they get warm. Those free from frost keep the best and for that reason the contract requires each farmer to protect his beets from frost when they are taken out of the ground.

"Many beet raisers are also growing tomatoes. Those who have early beets should deliver some as well as gather their tomatoes. We know that in tomatoes have to be gathered when ready, or there is a loss, but we also must have the ripe beets delivered first.

"This is the middle of August, the time when beets need water. This is the month to use what is necessary to keep the crops growing, but in September, unless the ground is very dry, water should not be used, but the beets should be allowed to ripen, as the farmer has to raise a 15 per cent beet to get $5 per ton at the factory. I am speaking now of early beets that have practically made their growth, but late ones should have water enough to keep them growing. Each farmer contracting for beets, agrees to deliver when asked to. When we start, we call for the ripe beets. Let those who get notice fill their agreement and prepare to dig at once."

GLYNN DECLINES PROPOSITION.

Albany, Aug. 16.—New York's two governors, after the epistolary clash of yesterday, continued today with increased bitterness their conflict for sole possession of the chief executive's chair and functions.

The proposal of William Sulzer, the impeached governor, that he and his rival lay their respective claims before the courts for speedy settlement came to grief last night.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn who claims that he is acting governor by virtue of Sulzer's impeachment, notified Mr. Sulzer that he had no intention of asking any court save the court for the trial of impeachment to decide the question.

Mr. Glynn's refusal places the entire situation at sea again. His refusal to arbitrate was a distinct surprise to Mr. Sulzer's friends.

"It is beyond my power to barter away any of the functions attached to the office in which I am placed by your impeachment," reads Mr. Glynn's reply to Mr. Sulzer's suggestion. "Any attempt on my part to do so or to stipulate a method by which it might be done would properly place me in the position you now occupy—that of being impeached for malfeasance in office. I cannot and will not attempt to do it."

"I hold myself in readiness to perform and shall perform every function of the office of governor except insofar as I am restrained by your illegal action or by physical force." No one was willing to forecast this morning what the day would bring forth.

Among the reports current was one that Mr. Glynn expected to go in person to the executive chamber and attempt to perform the duties of the governor. Mr. Sulzer asserted that he did not intend to relinquish any of the rights of the governorship.

The words "physical force" were brought into the controversy for the first time by Mr. Glynn's letter.

Mrs. Sulzer's Condition Bad.

Last night was the worst passed by Mrs. Sulzer since she became ill of a nervous disorder several days ago, but her condition this morning was less alarming, according to bulletins issued by the attending physicians.

A bulletin prepared by Dr. Abraham, a New York specialist, says: "I arrived at the bedside at 1 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Sulzer's condition was as follows:

"Temperature and pulse increasing; she complains of headache and mental depression and had two fainting spells. She sleeps restlessly and the little sleep was increased by sedatives."

The breach between Sulzer and Glynn is complete and there will be no further conference between their counsel, so far as known, on the question of submitting the controversy to the courts. D. Cady Herrick, Sulzer's chief counsel, in so announcing today, said that he did not expect to make public any plans of lawyers for the impeached executive.

"We are preparing our case for trial," said Mr. Herrick.

Interviewers asked Mr. Herrick what the next move would be. "I don't know that there will be a next move," he replied.
